Football Helmet Highlights

Football helmets have evolved from simple leather caps to essential high-tech headwear thanks to a score of innovations over the decades. Here's a look at some highlights:

The earliest football headgear, which was worn only by a few pro players, was called a head harness. It was made of leather and had flaps to cover the ears.

Beginning in 1915, interior padding was added to the caps to help absorb the shock from tackles, and putting holes in the ear flaps made communicating on the field easier.

Plastic football helmets were introduced in 1939. John T. Riddell Sr. modernized the coverings with the new synthetic material and also invented the chin strap. The Riddell company still makes official NFL helmets today.

In 1948, the original Los Angeles

Rams became the first pro team to put a logo on their helmets. To inspire his teammates, Rams player Fred Gehrke, who had an art degree, hand painted all 75 team helmets dark blue with yellow horns on the sides.

Face masks on helmets evolved from a single tubular bar to today's cage-like coverings. Attached visors became an option in the 1980s.

When it was first used, the radio helmet was quickly banned, but since 1994, they've been standard, allowing a coach to relay plays to the quarterback.

Manufacturers are now applying more technology to helmets, such as embedded warning sensors, in an effort to protect football players from on-field head injuries.

Say It With Flowers

Flowers are a popular gift, and there's more to picking out an arrangement than you might think. Almost every flower has a hidden meaning attached to its petals. In the 1800s, flowers were often used to send messages, and many people kept floral guidebooks in their homes. What perfumed words could you send with your bouquets?

Roses. These timeless beauties can have many meanings depending on their color. Classic red symbolizes romantic love; sunny yellow shows friendship or jealousy; pink hues can signify gratitude or sympathy; and white stands for innocence or secrecy.

Gerbera daisies. Large and friendly, these blossoms represent cheerfulness due to their bright colors. Innocence and beauty are also associated with this floral gift.

Tulips. Elegant and classic, this springtime favorite represents comfort and happiness. Like roses, tulips can have different meanings connected to various colors: purple for royalty, red for love, white for forgiveness and yellow for cheer.

Sunflowers. Legend says that Spanish explorers thought they had found gold when they first saw fields of sunflowers, and the blooms are still valued today as symbols of warmth, adoration and longevity.

Peonies. During Victorian times, this flower was sometimes given to show anger! But in modern day, peonies are connected to a happy life and marriage.
